GUILTY: Former Iraqi President Saddam Hussein reacts Sunday as a court sentences him to hang for the 1982 slaughter of Shiites under his reign.

Dems, GOP Make Final Push

Bush stumps in heartland, Pelosi in East as elections near

WASHINGTON | House control at stake, President Bush campaigned Sunday in endangered Republican districts across GOP-friendly middle America. Rep. Nancy Pelosi, hoping to become the first female speaker, stumped for Democratic challengers in the left-leaning Northeast.

"Here's the way I see it," Bush told a crowd inside an auditorium in Grand Island, Neb. "If the Democrats are so good about being the party of the opposition, let's just keep them in the opposition."

Pelosi, D-Calif., was cautiously optimistic about her party's chances Tuesday. "We are thankful for where we are today, to be poised for success," she said in Colchester, Conn. "But we have two Mount Everests we have to climb — they are called Monday and Tuesday."

Her party appears increasingly confident it can ride a wave of public disenchantment with the administration's policies to victory in the House and, possibly, the Senate.

Two days before the election, both parties focused on turning out voters. The numbers historically are low in nonpresidential year elections, with only about 40 percent of U.S. citizens of voting age population casting ballots.

Republicans and Democrats have sent out thousands of volunteers in states with the most contested races to work phone banks and canvass neighborhoods. Both parties also have assembled legal teams for possible challenges in case of voting problems. (AP)

LEGISLATION

To Be on the Safe Side, No One Drive

Drinking a shot of beer in New York could get you arrested for drunken driving. At least that's the way the New York law reads. Lawmakers this year approved a bill that sets the standard for driving while intoxicated at 0.18 grams of alcohol in a person's blood. A person's body might produce that much alcohol naturally, said Ed Fiandach, a DWI lawyer in Rochester. Instead of using grams, the law should have used blood alcohol content as a measure. (AP)

MENTAL PROBLEMS

My Ex Is Crazy for Saying I'm Crazy

A Portsmouth, N.H., nurse was arrested after filing a false report to have her ex-boyfriend involuntarily undergo a psychiatric evaluation, WCBS-TV reported. Julia Lynch alleged in the report that the man needed emergency mental tests, so police went to the man's house and took him to the hospital despite his objections. But, after testing, doctors concluded he was sane and not a threat to himself or others. "We're alleging these services were not needed," Portsmouth Police Capt. Janet Champlin said. (EXPRESS)

LAW ENFORCEMENT Meanwhile, I've Arrested My Wife

A New York detective suspended after testing positive for drugs says his wife served him meatballs spiked with marijuana because she wanted to keep him out of harm's way by forcing him into retirement. A judge believed him, and recommended last week that Anthony Chiofalo be reinstated. Chiofalo, of the Joint Terrorism Task Force, was suspended without pay last year after a random drug test found marijuana in his system. (AP)

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS STUDY AT THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH

The goal of this study is to define clinically important changes in RA activity, from the patient's perspective.

We are interested in learning how much of an improvement in pain, stiffness, function, and other symptoms is needed before patients recognize the change as an important improvement.

The study involves 2 visits to the NIH over 1-4 months for physical exams, written questionnaires, computer-based exercise, and blood draws. No treatment is provided.

We are particularly interested in patients starting prednisone, methotrexate, leflunomide, or anti-TNF drugs.

Abortion Tops Divisive Ballot Issues

Activists hope turnout for measures spills over to congressional races

WASHINGTON | Even if no candidates were running, this Election Day would be dramatic as voters across the country consider ballot measures on a multitude of hot-button topics — abortion, gay marriage, affirmative action, illegal immigration, sex crimes, even legalizing marijuana.

In all, there are 205 measures on the ballots in 37 states — a total topped only twice before. Huge sums have been spent, including tens of millions of dollars by tobacco companies fighting anti-smoking measures and by oil companies fighting a proposed California oil-production tax.

Voters in sparsely populated South Dakota face perhaps the most momentous choice — whether to uphold or reject a new state law that would ban abortions except when necessary to save a pregnant woman's life. South Dakota lawmakers passed the ban in hopes that a subsequent court challenge might lead to the U.S. Supreme Court overturning its 1973 Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortion.

Conservatives hope last month's court ruling in New Jersey ordering equal rights for same-sex couples will trigger a backlash aiding Republican candidates in the eight states with ban-gay-marriage amendments on their ballots: Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia and Wisconsin.

In many other states, activists on the left and right hope turnout for certain ballot measures may have a spillover effect on crucial races in the battle for control of Congress.

Report: Less Terrorism Cases Are Prosecuted

Study raises questions about quality of FBI's terror investigations

WASHINGTON | The Justice Department increasingly has refused to prosecute FBI cases targeting suspected terrorists over the past five years, according to private researchers who reviewed department records. The government says the findings are inaccurate and "intellectually dishonest."

The report being released Monday by the Transactional Records Access Clearinghouse at Syracuse University raises questions about the quality of the FBI's investigations.

Prosecutors declined to bring charges in 131 of 150, or 87 percent, of international terrorist case referrals from the FBI between October 2005 and June 2006, according to the report. The study was based on the most recent data available from the Justice Department's executive office for U.S. attorneys.

The data "raise troubling questions about the bureau's investigation of criminal matters involving individuals the government has identified as international terrorists," the report said. LARA JAKES JORDAN (AP)

Haggard Confesses to Congregation

Evangelist apologizes after his dismissal over sex, drug allegations

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO. | Saying that he was a "deceiver and liar" who had given in to his dark side, the Rev. Ted Haggard confessed to sexual immorality Sunday in a letter read from the pulpit of the mega-church he founded.

The disgraced former president of the National Evangelical Association, which represents 30 million evangelical Christians, apologized and said, "Because of pride, I began deceiving those I love the most because I didn't want to hurt or disappoint them."

"The fact is, I am guilty of sexual immorality. And I take responsibility for the entire problem. I am a deceiver and a liar. There's a part of my life that is so repulsive and dark that I have been warring against it for all of my adult life," he said.

condemned homosexuality, after a man claimed to have had drug-fueled homosexual trysts with him. Haggard also placed himself on administrative leave from the 14,000-member New Life Church, which he founded in the 1980s. Its independent Overseer Board fired him Saturday.

The letter was read to the New Life Church by another clergyman, the Rev. Larry Stockstill, senior pastor of Bethany World Prayer Center in Baker, La., and a member of the board that fired him. Haggard did not attend the service.

Haggard said in the letter, "The accusations made against me are not all true, but enough of them are that I was appropriately removed from his church leadership position."

Haggard had acknowledged on Friday that he paid Mike Jones of Denver for a massage and for methamphetamine, but said he did not have sex with him and did not take the drug.

"Our investigation and Pastor Haggard's public statements have proven without a doubt that he has committed sexually immoral conduct," the Overseer Board said in a statement.

Jones, who said he is gay, said he was upset when he discovered who Haggard was and that New Life opposed same-sex marriage — a key issue in Colorado, with a pair of issues on Tuesday's ballot.

"I am sad for him and his family. I know this is a tough day for him also," he said Sunday. "My intent was never to destroy his family. My intent was to expose a hypocrite."

Bowers was convicted in August 1998 of ordering the assassination of Vernon Dahmer, a civil rights activist who had fought for black rights during Mississippi's turbulent struggle for racial equality.

Episcopal Church of the United States Bishop Katharine Jefferts Schori gets a hug from a congregation member at Washington National Cathedral on Saturday.

Female Bishop At Church's Helm

Schori takes office as first woman priest to lead Episcopal Church

WASHINGTON | Katharine Jefferts Schori on Saturday took office as the first female leader of the Episcopal Church and the first woman priest to head an Anglican province, two landmarks that could quickly be overshadowed by divisions over the Bible and sexuality throughout world Anglicanism.

Jefferts Schori, who supports ordaining gays, acknowledged the rift in an elaborate ceremony Saturday at Washington National Cathedral, urging parishioners to "make peace" with those who oppose the direction of the U.S. church. In 2003, the denomination consecrated its first openly gay bishop, V. Gene Robinson of New Hampshire.

"If some in this church feel wounded by recent decisions, then our salvation, our health as a body, is at some hazard, and it becomes the duty of all of us to seek healing and wholeness," Jefferts Schori said during her ceremony.

Jefferts Schori, 52, was bishop of Nevada when she was the surprise winner of the election for presiding bishop at the Episcopal General Convention in June. A former oceanographer who was ordained in 1994, she had served only about five years as a bishop.

Her election was celebrated as a victory for woman clergy and for Episcopalians who support full inclusion of gays and lesbians in the 2.3-million-member denomination. It was decried by U.S. traditionalists and many Anglicans overseas who do not want to recognize Jefferts Schori's leadership.

More than 3,000 people filled the church to welcome the new presiding bishop. RACHEL ZOLL (AP)

Cheers, Tears After Saddam Verdict

Iraqi court sentences ex-president to hang for '82 Dujail killings

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | An Iraqi court on Sunday sentenced Saddam Hussein to the gallows for crimes against humanity, closing a quarter-century-old chapter of violent suppression in this land of long memories, deep grudges and sectarian slaughter.

The former Iraqi dictator and six others were convicted and sentenced for the 1982 killings of 148 people in the Shiite town of Dujail after an attempt on his life there.

Shiites and Kurds, who had been tormented and killed in the tens of thousands under Saddam's iron rule, erupted in celebration — but looked ahead fearfully for a potential backlash from the Sunni insurgency that some believe could be a final shove into all-out civil war.

Televised, the trial was watched throughout Iraq and the Middle East as much for theater as for substance. Saddam was ejected from the courtroom repeatedly for his political harangues.

verdict was announced.

Barzan Ibrahim, Saddam's half brother and intelligence chief during the Dujail killings, was sentenced to join the former leader on the gallows, as was Awad Hamed al-Bandar, head of Iraq's Revolutionary Court, which issued the death sentences against the Dujail residents.

Iraq's former Vice President Taha Yassin Ramadan was convicted of premeditated murder and sentenced to life in prison. Three defendants were given up to 15 years in prison for torture and premeditated murder.

In the streets of Dujail, people celebrated and burned pictures of Saddam as the verdict was read.

But in Saddam's hometown of Tikrit, 1,000 people defied a curfew and carried pictures of the city's favorite son through the streets. Some declared the court a product of the U.S. "occupation forces" and condemned the verdict. Policemen wept in the streets.

The death sentences automatically go to a nine-judge appeals panel, which has unlimited time to review the case. STEVEN R. HURST (AP)

Pivotal Vote in Nicaragua

Election will decide if Sandinista's Ortega returns to presidency

MANAGUA, NICARAGUA | Nicaraguans cast ballots Sunday to decide whether Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega will return to power in a race closely watched by the U.S., which backed the war to try to overthrow him in the 1980s.

The U.S. has warned against an Ortega win, with Commerce Secretary Carlos Gutierrez saying aid and trade "will be endangered" if "anti-democratic forces prevail." The race is also key for Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez, a U.S. opponent who is hoping to find a new ally in Ortega.

While some polls opened late, few major problems were reported. Pablo Ayon, head of the independent Nicaraguan Civic Group for Ethics and Transparency, said participation was "high, orderly and peaceful."

Amid fears of fraud, the vote is being monitored by 18,000 electoral observers. Voters are also electing a new Congress.

Nicaraguan presidential candidate Daniel Ortega exits a polling station in Managua.

Ortega faces four opponents: Harvard-educated Eduardo Montealegre, Sandinista dissident Edmundo Jarquin, ruling party lawyer Jose Rizo and former Contra rebel Eden Pastora.

Most polls show his closest rival is Montealegre of the Nicaraguan Liberal Alliance, a party that broke from the Constitutional Liberal Party of former President Arnoldo Aleman, who was convicted of corruption following his 1997 2002 term.

Recent polls showed Ortega with a comfortable lead over Montealegre, but just short of the 35 percent needed to avoid a second round vote.

While Ortega has a loyal base of support, many voters still have bitter memories of Sandinista rule, which left the country in economic shambles and saw 30,000 killed in a war against U.S.-backed Contra rebels. TRACI CARL (AP)

Taiwanese President Denies Graft Charges

TAIPEI, TAIWAN | Taiwanese President Chen Shui-bian on Sunday apologized for causing political turmoil that hurt "the nation's image," but he denied prosecutors' allegations that he was involved in embezzling money from a special fund for diplomacy.

The president also refused to resign in his first public comments since prosecutors indicted first lady Wu Shu-chen on embezzlement, forgery and perjury charges on Friday. She was accused of taking $450,000 from a special diplomacy fund from 2002 through 2006.

Prosecutors said Chen could be implicated in the case, but he cannot be indicted as a sitting president.

Authorities in Europe Probe Mass Blackout

BERLIN | European officials and electricity firms were probing Sunday why a supply problem in Germany left about 10 million people in darkness across the continent.

Saturday night's outage, which also halted German trains and trapped scores of people in elevators in France and Italy, was brief. There were no reported injuries.

But it raised questions about the reliability of Europe's interconnected power grids and drew a call for stronger coordination.

Generator E.On AG said the problems began in northwestern Germany, where its network became overloaded — possibly because it shut down a high-voltage transmission line over a river to let a ship pass safely. (AP)

Md. Candidates Head To Urban Communities

Hopefuls campaign in Baltimore and District suburbs with notables

LANGLEY PARK, MD. | High voter turnout was the goal Sunday for candidates for governor and U.S. Senate.

Politicians were furiously campaigning in the state's most populated areas — Baltimore and the Washington suburbs.

Former President Bill Clinton headed to the county Sunday night to rally for the Democrats — gubernatorial candidate Martin O'Malley and U.S. Senate candidate Ben Cardin.

The GOP had a star in town, too: Former New York City Mayor Rudolph Giuliani headlined an evening rally in the county with Gov. Robert Ehrlich.

O'Malley, Cardin, Ehrlich and Republican U.S. Senate nominee Michael Steele spent Sunday morning greeting voters at different churches.

And, Sunday afternoon, Democratic lieutenant governor candidate Anthony Brown urged Hispanics at a rally to vote. (AP)

Tree Group Honors Mayor

Nonprofit reveals 75-foot-tall redwood is the District's largest

WASHINGTON | A nonprofit group has unveiled its register of the largest trees in the city — from the tulip poplar to the gingko, and some with trunks of more than 38 feet in circumference.

On Thursday, at the Tudor Place Historic House and Garden, Casey

Trees offered its list of 26 trees and also honored outgoing Mayor Anthony Williams for his efforts to help the urban forest.

Under the Williams administration, the District has planted about 25,000 trees and significantly reduced the response time and backlog for pruning and other maintenance, said Mark Buscaino, executive director of Casey Trees, which works to restore and protect the city's trees.

"Trees really are a great symbol of stewardship, of our responsibility to leave things better than we found them," Williams said.

Mary Arcuri of Reno Road in Northwest owns the city's largest dawn redwood, which is 151 inches around and 75 feet tall. She says her dogs enjoy relaxing on its exposed roots, and her nephews like to climb the tree.

"It's a tree that lives with us, and we love it," Arcuri said. (AP)

Officials Warn Residents of Sex Predator After Attack

An alleged attack on a 6-year-old girl has prompted police to issue a warning to area residents. The girl was playing with a friend near the Glassmanor Recreation Center on Friday around 7 p.m. when she was allegedly approached by a man who dragged her into the woods and sexually assaulted her. The man reportedly released the girl and told her to run home after the attack. Police said the girl described the black man as tall with dreadlocks or cornrows. (AP)

Political Analysts Eyeing a Shift in Va. Political Center

A victory Tuesday for Jim Webb could indicate Northern Virginia's emergence as a power center in state politics. Population growth and changing political attitudes in counties considered suburbs of Washington are pushing the voters who live there further away, ideologically, from the rest of the state. George Mason University political science professor Mark Rozell said a win for the Democratic candidate over Republican incumbent George Allen could point out widening differences across the state. He said candidates who run for statewide office may have to change the strategies that have allowed them to win without carrying Northern Virginia. (AP)

A lack of must-have gadgets could spell ho-hum holiday sales

GADGETS | A fierce battle is brewing for consumer-electronics dollars this holiday season as two new video game consoles join the widening mix of TVs, cameras, portable music players, computers and cell phones.

But some market watchers say the electronics industry could be running up against a season that's more ho-hum than ho-ho.

Analysts predict revenues are slowing for several reasons: prices for a range of products, most notably flat-panel TVs, have dropped significantly; hits of previous years, such as digital cameras, are maturing; supplies of the new game systems are limited; and no other new blockbuster products seem to have emerged.

While mainstays like TVs, Apple Computer Inc.'s iPods, and laptops will still fuel sales, there appears to be little on the horizon to trigger a repeat of the revenue growth of recent years. A sobering forecast looms for 2007 as well.

"I call it the storm before the storm," Chris Crotty, a senior con-

BUYER'S MARKET: A dip in prices for popular items like flat-panel TVs and a drop-off in the launch of new products means retailers will be competing for holiday sales.

sumer electronics analyst at market researcher iSuppli Corp., said of the holiday quarter. "There is more competition. There are more products out there, and it's only going to get worse."

All of that could translate to better bargains for consumers but less money for gadget makers.

The industry saw U.S. revenues rise by 7 percent in 2003 and more than 10 percent in both 2004 and 2005, according to an industry trade group. This year, sales are expected to grow 9 percent, to $140 billion, then only 6.7 percent, to $149.3 billion, in 2007.

The gotta-have-it early adopters of technology helped propel the revenue boom of the past few years. But now, analysts say, electronics companies are facing a second and more challenging wave of consumers who may want the new gizmos but are willing to wait for prices to come down.

The upcoming PlayStation 3 from Sony Corp., priced from $500 to $600, and Nintendo Co.'s $250 Wii — both due to go on sale in the U.S. in mid-November — are in hot demand but will be available only in limited quantities. Stock shortages are anticipated. MAY WONG (AP)

IE7 Tabs Its Way Ahead

Microsoft unveils its first major Explorer upgrade since 2001

TECH TEST | The long-awaited upgrade to Microsoft's Web browser is here, introducing the masses to features available for years in rival products.

My initial thought about Microsoft Corp.'s game of catch-up was "no big deal." But after trying out version 7 of Internet Explorer, the first major release since 2001, I found a number of improvements to like. Normally, those might provide enough reason to switch to IE7 — except rivals like Mozilla's Firefox have been pushing forward with new tools as well.

The most noticeable change in IE is a redesign that replaces menus like "file" and "edit" with task-oriented buttons for printing, searching and the like.

Microsoft's new interface initially will seem odd. But in no time, I started questioning the old ways. Why, for instance, was "print" under "file" and not "view"?

IE7 also introduces a built-in search box and tabbed browsing, which reduces clutter by opening multiple Web pages in a single window. That'll come as new to the 90 percent of Internet users who don't use Firefox and Opera, which already sport both features.

The new Microsoft browser also carries security improvements, including warnings when Web visitors try to go to known "phishing" sites that try to steal passwords.

There are things to like about IE7, Firefox and Opera, and I recommend IE users at least upgrade to version 7. They may find features to like in Firefox or Opera, but the gap is narrower now, so IE7 may be satisfactory. ANICK JESDANUN (AP)

Redskins Win on Second Chance at Late FG

22 | 19

In up-and-down game, Novak's kick as time expires downs Dallas

REDSKINS | Joe Gibbs watched his Washington Redskins go from blowing a chance for a last-minute victory over the Dallas Cowboys to preventing a last-minute loss to, somehow, pulling out a win with no time left on the clock.

"Gosh," the Hall of Fame coach said, "I don't know if I've experienced anything like that."

In a finish as crazy as they come, Washington's Nick Novak got two chances to try a winning field goal, missing the first from 49 yards with 31 seconds to go before barely making the second, a 47-yarder after time expired that lifted the Redskins past the Cowboys 22-19 on Sunday.

"It's a short walk from the outhouse to the penthouse," Novak said. "This is what a kicker dreams about. There are ups and downs, and this was the up."

Between Novak's low and high, Dallas kicker Mike Vanderjagt's chance to win it — a 35-yarder with six seconds left — was blocked by Troy Vincent. The ball bounced around until Sean Taylor picked it up and made a weaving, tackle-busting return as time expired. Dallas' Kyle Kosier was flagged for a face mask penalty on the return, tacking on another 15 yards — and meaning regulation would continue for one more play.

Novak came through this time, sneaking the ball inside the right upright. With his arms up, Novak ran about 50 yards back downfield, and several of his teammates, led by Vincent, piled on top of him.

The Redskins (3-5) snapped a three-game losing streak and

Grading GIBBS

→ Best Call: Going for it on 4th-and-goal on the first drive looked like it backfired, but a safety and a field goal later, the Redskins were up by five. If it works, it works.

→ Worst Call: No offense to Clinton Portis, but the Redskins traded a third-round pick for T.J. Duckett, a power back, for exactly that situation. If Gibbs is not going to use him then, when will we ever see Duckett get the call?

→ Best Adjustment: The defense needs to get the credit it deserves. After giving up points in four of the Cowboys' first six drives, the Redskins' D held Dallas scoreless in their last five possessions, forcing four punts and blocking one field goal.

B The stats say the Cowboys won, but the defense buckled down and got the win.

Running back Clinton Portis celebrates his second-quarter 38-yard touchdown run, his longest of the season. Portis finished with 84 rushing yards on 23 carries.

dropped Dallas (4-4) into a second-place tie in the NFC East with idle Philadelphia.

In many ways, the Cowboys could only blame themselves, with all kinds of miscues and, perhaps, errors in judgment: a safety on their first offensive possession; a failed two-point conversion early in the second quarter ("I go by the chart," coach Bill Parcells said); and plenty more errors that wasted another fine performance by quarterback Tony Romo in his second NFL start.

"When you've got that much going for you, and you screw it up like that, it's how you end up 4-4," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said.

There was, of course, the flubbed field goal by Vanderjagt, who came in 5-for-5 in the fourth quarter this season. And that key flag on Kosier, one of 11 times Dallas was penalized for 153 yards.

"It's a heartbreaker," Parcells said, "and I really don't have too much to say." HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

Ravens Go Up Early Against Bengals

26 | 20

RAVENS | The Ravens needed only five minutes to take control of their game against the Cincinnati Bengals. Now they own a commanding lead in the AFC North.

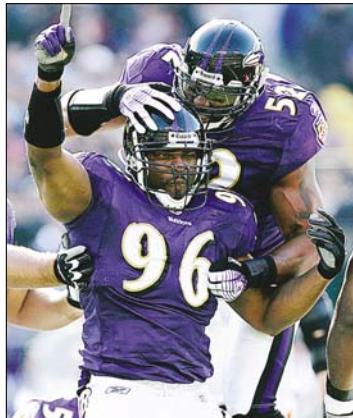

The Ravens scored two quick touchdowns off turnovers and never trailed in a 26-20 victory Sunday, their second straight since coach Brian Billick took control of the offense.

After trailing 17-0, Cincinnati twice got within six points in the fourth quarter.

Steve McNair passed for 245 yards, Jamal Lewis scored a touchdown and Matt Stover kicked four field goals for the Ravens (6-2), who took a two-game lead over Cincinnati (4-4) in the AFC North.

Since Billick fired offensive coordinator Jim Fassel and assumed play-calling duties, the Ravens have scored 61 points and McNair has played brilliantly. He was 21-for-30 against the Bengals after going 17-for-23 in a 35-22 win over New Orleans last week.

Cincinnati's Carson Palmer threw one touchdown pass, but was intercepted twice as the Bengals lost for the fourth time in five games. Cincinnati, which had won three straight over Baltimore, is at .500 for the first time since 2004. (AP)

Chicago Hit With 1st Loss

Dolphins spoil Bears' perfect season with a dominating victory

FOOTBALL | The Miami Dolphins still look out for their own.

It wasn't quite the drama of Dan Marino tossing easy touchdowns on "Monday Night Football," but, once again, Miami upset Chicago to spoil the Bears' bid for an undefeated season.

Ronnie Brown rushed for a career-high 157 yards and Jason Taylor forced a fumble and returned an interception 20 yards for a touchdown, helping Miami beat Chicago 31-13 on Sunday.

Brown carried 29 times and eclipsed his previous career-high set last season against Carolina by 35 yards. The defense constantly applied pressure as the Dolphins (2-6) snapped a four-game losing streak and handed Chicago (7-1) its first loss of the season.

Miami's win removes another potential challenger to the 1972

Dolphins, the only team with a perfect record in NFL history. The Indianapolis Colts went into Sunday night's game with the Patriots as the only undefeated team this season.

Buckeyes Are AP's Unanimous No. 1

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | It's unanimous.

Ohio State received all 65 first-place votes in the Associated Press Top 25 released Sunday to become the first unanimous No. 1 in three years. The last team to sweep the media panel voting was Oklahoma on Nov. 30, 2003.

The Buckeyes have been top-ranked all season, and for the fourth straight week their Big Ten rival, Michigan, was No. 2.

The Buckeyes and Wolverines had closer-than-expected wins Saturday. Ohio State won 17-10 at Illinois and Michigan held off Ball State 34-26.

Louisville received its best ranking, moving up two spots to No. 3 after its 44-34 victory over West Virginia on Thursday.

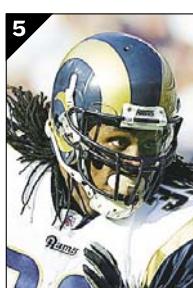

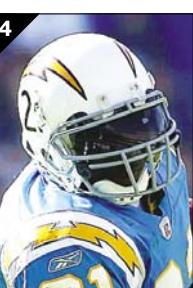

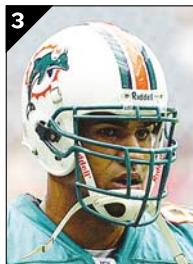

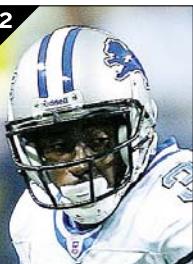

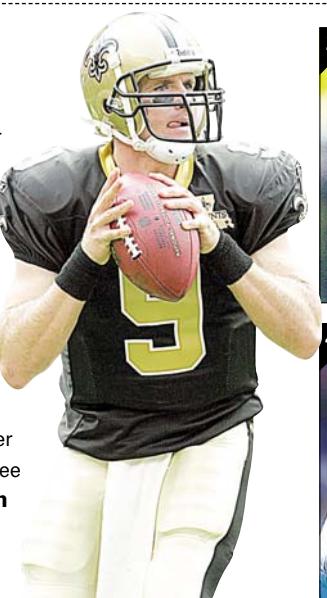

Maryland was in the rankings for the first time this season. It defeated Clemson 13-12 on a last-second field goal to move into the rankings for the first time since the middle of the 2003 season.

JOYRIDE GONE BAD: Champ Car Driver Paul Tracy may have to miss the season's final race after an alcohol-fueled joyride on a golf cart went awry near Las Vegas, according to an ESPN report. Tracy broke his right shoulder blade when the cart landed on top of him after he tried to jump a sand dune.

United's Season Comes to an End

Revolution shuts out D.C. 1-0 to move on to another MLS Cup

UNITED | While Taylor Twellman and the Revolution were playing their way to another MLS Cup, Freddy Adu symbolized D.C. United's frustration as he sat on the bench for much of the second half with his head buried in his gloved hands.

Twellman, a former Maryland Terrapin and the reigning league

MVP, scored in the fourth minute, and Matt Reis made eight saves Sunday to lead the Revolution to a 1-0 victory in the Eastern Conference final, earning New England a second consecutive appearance in the MLS championship game.

New England will play either Houston or Colorado, who met later Sunday, in next weekend's MLS Cup in Frisco, Texas. It will be the Revolution's third appearance in the title game; it lost to the Los Angeles Galaxy in 2002 and again last year.

While the visitors celebrated at RFK Stadium, the home team was left to rue a season that went horribly wrong over the final few months. A 14-game unbeaten streak gave United a huge standings lead shrunk as summer turned to fall, and the East's top seed was fortunate to get by the New York Red Bulls in the first round of the playoffs.

Freddy Adu sits on the bench with his head in his hands during the second half.

United played better Sunday, controlling the run of play and outshooting New England 18-6. But Reis was always in the way, cutting off the angles, smothering the ball or stretching his arms just enough to push it out of harm's way.

Adu, who arguably created more scoring chances than any United player, was surprisingly removed for a substitute in the 65th minute.

The Revolution's only shot on goal found the net. With two players converging, Pat Noonan lifted a cross to Twellman, who lost defender Brian Namoff and turned to put a 14-yard shot past goalkeeper Troy Perkins. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Terps QB Makes The Crucial Plays

Improved Hollenbach defines clutch in big win against Clemson

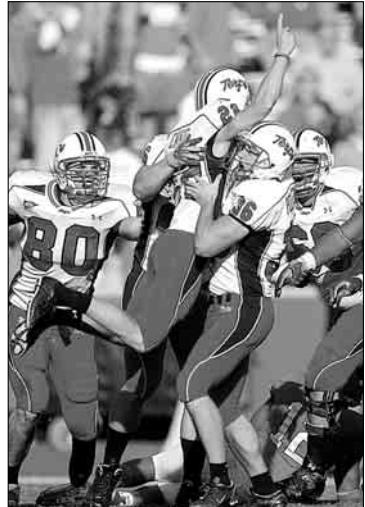

TERPS | With Clemson's big Gaines Adams charging hard, Sam Hollenbach stood strong and fired a critical pass to Isaiah Williams on Maryland's game-winning drive.

That, Terps coach Ralph Friedgen, is a big reason why his team is suddenly alive in the Atlantic Coast Conference race.

Hollenbach's 13-yard throw to Williams put Maryland in field-goal range inside Clemson's 30. Five plays later, Dan Ennis kicked a 31-yarder to give the Terps (7-2, 4-1 ACC) a 13-12 win over then-19th ranked Clemson on Saturday. Maryland broke into the top 25 at No. 23 and Clemson dropped out of the rankings for the second time this season.

"Last year, Sam would've bailed out" on the throw under Clemson's pressure, Friedgen said.

But it was Hollenbach who moved smoothly forward and found

Williams downfield.

Hollenbach, a senior, didn't see the throw as that remarkable. "I think our confidence, my confidence in the team and their confidence in me is at an all-time high," he said. "It's got to keep getting better as the season rolls on."

If it does, Maryland could have a special finish ahead. (AP)

Stewart Way Out in Front in Texas

AUTO RACING | While all the tense battles of NASCAR's Chase for the championship rage on, Tony Stewart is driving in a world of his own.

Just having fun and driving for wins — not a championship — Stewart overpowered the field Sunday at Texas Motor Speedway. "Smoke" led 278 of 339 laps, including the five extra laps because of a late caution, and often was so far ahead that he appeared to be turning laps all by himself.

Most of the action was well behind him, where Jimmie Johnson quietly grabbed away the point lead from Matt Kenseth by 17 points with a second-place finish. (AP)

ESTHER ROLLS: Tiffany Dupont stars as Queen Esther in the Old Testament-based movie "One Night With the King."

Hollywood Hills

Faith-based films are rising in popularity — and heavenly profit

FILM | Ever since Mel Gibson's "The Passion of the Christ" was crowned with a domestic gross of $370 million in 2004, Hollywood has been genuflecting in the direction of the newly discovered faith-based audience.

Last year, Buena Vista courted Christian audiences for its mainstream release "The Chronicles of Narnia: The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe." Last month, 20th Century Fox Home Entertainment announced a new label, FoxFaith, that will release faith-based films theatrically and on DVD. And in December, when studios usually release holiday movies full of Santa Claus and mischievous elves, New Line Cinema is taking a religious path with "The Nativity Story."

But it's not just the major studios looking for manna from heaven. Indie producers and distributors have discovered a receptive audience, and they are reaching that audience without the help of major Hollywood stars or the usual publicity ploys.

Look no further than "One Night With the King," which recounts the biblical story of Esther, and "Facing the Giants," an inspirational tale about a Christian high school football coach.

"King" does have supporting turns from Omar Sharif and Peter O'Toole, but its lead role is played by Tiffany Dupont, graduating from work in television. Nevertheless, it bowed Oct. 13 to a strong $4.1 million in 909 theaters.

To achieve that minor miracle, the film's producer, Gener8xion Entertainment, and its distributor, Rocky Mountain Pictures, didn't go through the usual Hollywood marketing channels, but instead turned to priests and ministers to endorse the film.

"It really helps to go through the church," said Richard Cook, one of the producers of "King" and Gener8xion's executive vice president. "You know they will appreciate the message of the film."

Samuel Goldwyn Films and Destination Films, a niche distributor owned by Sony Pictures, also prospered from the recent release of "Giants." Produced by Sherwood Pictures, part of the media ministry of the Albany, Ga.-based Sherwood Baptist Church, the film was made on a limited budget with a cast and crew of volunteers.

"What is unique about faith-based films is they don't ... trust Hollywood," Samuel Goldwyn president Meyer Gottlieb said. "You have to have pastors and ministers see the movie and convey that the marketing materials are exactly what you see on the screen." NICOLE SPERLING

Stray Cat Struts Tired Old Stuff

Brian Setzer mostly forgoes rockabilly on new big bland CD

MUSIC | Despite being the world's best-known rockabilly guitarist and big-band leader, Brian Setzer occupies an unenviable position in popular music.

He's so closely linked to the past — the '50s are literally inked across his sleeves — that it's hard to accept him doing anything new.

On "13" (Surfdog), Setzer tries on some different hats, but with his blond pompadour as big as and fluffy as it is, none quite fits. As always, his guitar playing is fantastic, but for every "Rocket Cathedral," an inspired tune that's part Cheap Trick, part Stray Cats, there's a "Broken Down Piece of Junk" or "Everybody's Up to Something," bar-band songs that hardly live up to Setzer's abilities.

Even when he revisits rockabilly, the results are mixed. "Bad, Bad

POMP ROCK: Brian Setzer and his giant hair create bar-band blues on "13."

Girl (In a Bad, Bad World)" has a cool Japanese edge, but "Really Rockabilly" feels a little like sour grapes as Setzer reacts to the underground backlash against his commercial success.

While Setzer deserves credit for peeling out in new directions, the album lacks the focus and purpose that often make his work so brilliant. He has the talent to reinvent himself, but "13" won't be the disc that does it. KENNETH PARTRIDGE

Oops, He Did It

Kevin Federline ignores critics, makes rotten CD

MUSIC | Why won't anyone take Kevin Federline's rap career seriously? On the song "America's Most Hated," the hopeful hip-hopper tries to shoot down his critics: "I got 50 mil, I can do whatever I want/I don't need a deal, I can do whatever I want."

That's probably true, but where did Federline get that $50 million? And why doesn't he need a record deal? Unless he's a better businessman than we thought, the answer would seem to be his wife, Britney Spears.

On his debut album, "Playing With Fire," released on his own Federation Records label, Federline is so busy acting out a diamond-encrusted fantasy that he ignores reality. When rappers brag about money, it's usually because they earned it (legally or otherwise), but Federline may be the first rapper to brag about marrying rich.

Time and again, he gallingly flaunts his fortune, his cars, his jewelry. When he scoffs, "Look, man, I'm in a whole 'nother tax bracket," on the single "Lose Control," Federline comes across as a distasteful gold digger — the Anna Nicole Smith of rap.

Hispanics Turn to Country

MUSIC | When country music acts started noticing more Hispanic fans at their concerts, it didn't take long for Music Row to start dreaming of its next big audience.

The Country Music Association in Nashville says there are no good studies showing how many

FEDERJERK: Mr. Britney Spears wouldn't listen to those who said, "You stink."

"Playing With Fire" is likely to further cement K-Fed's reputation as a rube who won life's lottery when he married Spears. He seems totally devoid of insight, unable to tell a compelling story or present a sympathetic side to his personality. The album opens with news broadcasts attacking his marriage and his parenting skills, but that's as deep as Federline delves.

He's mostly concerned with pumping up his image, knocking down haters and proving his street cred.

Throughout the album, Federline aims for Eminem's sing-song cadence, Snoop Dogg's laid-back insouciance and 50 Cent's menace, failing each time. (Here's his idea of thugging: "As I march through the valley of the shadow of death/Daughter on my chest/Wife on my left.")

Federline has no idea what it means to be a rapper — he just wants to spend money like one. RAFER GUZMAN (NEWSDAY)

Maria Pena looks for "musica country."

Hispanics listen to country already, so the industry group recently formed a task force to investigate. Anecdotal evidence suggests Spanish-speakers are not a large part of the country music audience. The phrase "country music" doesn't even have a translation in Spanish. "If they know it at all, they'll call it 'musica country,'" said Eddie Wright-Rios, a Vanderbilt University professor.

Maria Pena owns Las Americas Music in Nashville and says no one ever comes into her store looking for country music. But Pena's employee Camelia Wissar said she listens to country and her friends do, as well. When asked who she likes, she listed Alan Jackson and Garth Brooks.

"I listened to it in Mexico, too," she said in Spanish. TRAVIS LOLLER (AP)

Buying a Home in December Will save you thousands!

If you intend to purchase a home in 2006, a little known piece of paper will save you thousands of dollars off of the list price. Simply put, this is the easiest and surest way to save in this market. Realtors and home sellers don't want you, the home buyer to know this program exists.

This program has been the subject of extensive analysis by industry experts and is being used in other parts of the country. Why has it taken so long to arrive here in the Washington area?

One web site www.MyPropertySaving.com has it right... but why we don't see this program available throughout the metro area is unexplainable to me. If you are purchasing a property before December 31, 2006, you owe it to yourself to investigate this program.

Good luck and happy home searching.

Gold Digger Fever

'The Gold Rush' tells the violent tale of 1840s California

BLOOD ORE | When in doubt, blame the media. According to the "American Experience" (9 p.m., PBS) presentation "The Gold Rush," the discovery of precious ore in California streambeds transformed that state and the nation. But the gold fever of the late 1840s was spread by the rise of the popular "penny press" newspapers. Readers were told of fabulous riches there for the taking. So, by the thousands, farmers, blacksmiths and preachers decamped for California.

THEM THAR HILLS: All kinds of folks moved to California in search of gold.

Would-be prospectors arrived from Chile and China, too, and soon Northern California became a melting pot of dreamers and toilers from around the globe. "Gold Rush" uses letters, period photos — make that daguerreotypes — and cinematic re-enactments to show how some became rich and some were ruined, and how this fleeting gold fever would result in permanent social changes. The quick influx of outsiders also whipped up xenophobia and resentment against American Indians.

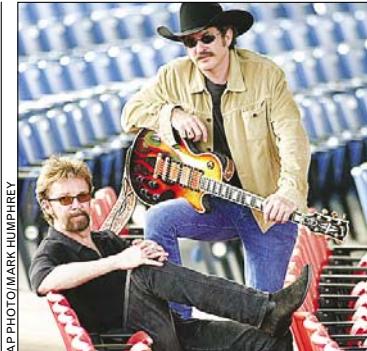

Historian James Rawls sums up the gold rush's mixed legacy. "California entered the Union shining with gold, but also dripping with blood." KEVIN MCDONOUGH

Medical tourists flock to developing nations for cheaper surgeries

Dodie Gilmore is a spry 60-year-old, a one-time rodeo champion from Oklahoma who loves the outdoors. But when she could no longer straddle her faithful horse, River, she knew it was time for a new hip.

But how could she afford it? As an independent contractor, she knew her privately purchased health plan would never pay up to $40,000 for the operation, since it was a pre-existing condition. So she asked her boss about traveling to India, where hip resurfacing alone would cost just $7,000. He not only gave her his blessing but offered to foot the bill, minus travel and hotels — making Gilmore one of the first Americans sent overseas for surgery by an employer.

"The doctors were wonderful," Gilmore said days after being discharged, sipping coffee at a New Delhi roadside cafe with her sister, Carol, who went along for trip. "The overall care was pretty darn good."

Gilmore is among the hundreds of thousands of so-called medical tourists — 500,000 from the United States alone last year — who are flocking to hospitals in developing nations.

They're coming from the U.S. to avoid soaring costs. They're coming from Europe and Canada to avoid long waits choking national health systems. They're coming from the Middle East for better care and service — especially after Sept. 11, when many Arabs are nervous about whether they'll be welcomed in the United States, where they often went for care.

Many doctors working in facilities catering to medical tourists are trained abroad, often in the U.S. or Europe. About 100 foreign hospitals have been approved by the international arm of the Chicago-based Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations, which also accredits U.S. hospitals.

More and more patients such as Gilmore — who had never held a passport or even tasted Indian food before her trip — are returning home and spreading the word about an alternative.

In the U.S., health care costs are getting so high that some businesses and insurance companies are starting to eye the potential savings of outsourcing health care.

"It's just one of the many ways in which our world is flattening," said Arnold Milstein, chief physician at

New York-based Mercer Health & Benefits who's researching the feasibility of outsourcing medical care for three Fortune 500 corporations. "Many companies see it as a natural extension of the competition they've faced in other aspects of their business."

Although language and cultural barriers can make communication with doctors and nurses frustrating, it's ultimately up to patients themselves to investigate hospitals and physicians before considering surgery abroad. The Internet is loaded with resources that range from doctor bios to patient blogs detailing the positives and negatives.

Merlot Goes ‘Sideways’

Alcohol

Oversupply and lack of demand leave wine sitting on the shelves

Winemaker Chris Phelps lets his tongue decide when it's time to harvest merlot. Grapes popping with sweetness? Check. Velvety skin with a melt-in-your mouth texture? Get out the clippers.

But this harvest, merlot growers and producers have more to worry about than selecting the best grapes. After a boom in the '90s led to a lot more merlot being planted and made (not all of it great), oversupply and faltering demand have cut into prices, leaving some merlot grapes hanging on the vine.

“There is merlot that’s just not going to sell,” said Bill Turrentine, president of Turrentine Brokerage in Novato, Calif.

At Swanson Vineyards, a Napa Valley producer of high-end merlot, staff aren’t taking the grape’s misfortunes lightly. The winery is in the third year of a campaign called Merlot Fights Back, holding tastings and seminars across the country and generally “preaching the merlot gospel,” said Swanson’s Phelps.

“The bottom line is that the trade has kind of gotten off of merlot.”

JOHN GILLESPIE

Swanson doesn’t expect to have to leave merlot to rot in the fields this year despite the poor market. With production of just 20,000 or so cases a year, most of that premium merlot grown in the Oakville appellation, the winery is small enough to use up all its fruit.

But there are some growers who don’t expect to sell fruit that isn’t already under contract, said Nick Frey, president pinot-loving wine snob.

Did “Sideways” put a spin on merlot sales?

Some think yes, although they note that there were a number of behind-the-scenes factors at work, including the overplanting that followed merlot’s mid-1990s popularity surge.

“It probably contributed to a trend,” said Turrentine. “It is unfortunate, because some people are making beautiful merlot.”

Still, many in the industry don’t think consumers have lost their taste for merlot, which is often softer and easier on the palate than other reds, especially when comparing younger wines.

Sales data show merlot is still popular with consumers, though sales growth has slowed.

There were 7.8 million cases of merlot sold in food stores in 2005, according to ACNielsen, a firm that tracks checkout scanner sales in about 3,000 supermarkets and large-volume retail outlets nationwide. That was almost the same as the 7.75 million cases sold in 2004. Overall, merlot’s market share dipped slightly from 12.4 percent in 2004 to 11.7 percent in 2005.

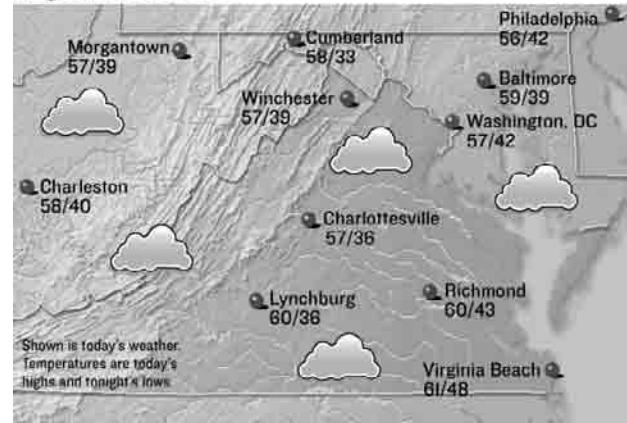

“The bottom line is that the trade has kind of gotten off of merlot,” said Wine Opinions owner John Gillespie. MICHELLE LOCKE (AP) piece was a sleek, almost too-blue wool coat with a big button front-and-center.

→ Federation: Refreshingly, Federation isn't trying to be anything it's not — streetwear that's cool and comfy. Its T-shirts aren't trying to change the world, but make the wearer happy with cute stylized birds and childlike drawings. Its signature jean comes with the recognizable white painted border around a back pocket, and its new tapered-leg version was a hit with editors with its snaps down the outside calf.

→ Cherry Cotton Candy: Cherry Cotton Candy reminds me of a cross between those cute Tokyo girls and vintage ski gear. Its youthful range is for the Gen-Z girl who's doing her own thing and has the innate confidence to pull it off. Adorable yellow tees with what appeared to be an old nativity scene print and its leopard-print bomber jackets were the highlights.

→ Kingan Jones: Kingan Jones would win the "most improved" award with her great color palette, including mustard and purple, and pleasantly jarring zigzag print and acidic watercolor print on black silk satin. Her silhouettes were unusual without being weird and best illustrated in her wool skirt suit with cropped sleeve and slightly cocoon-shaped jacket.

→ Zambesi: One of my favorite pieces was a marine blue velvet tulip sleeve blouson coat/dress. Fabulous color, fabulous fabric, fabulous silhouette. Its darker, tougher version in appropriately named "shark" fabric, cinched with a wide chunky cobalt leather belt, worn by the equally fabulous new Aboriginal-Aussie model Samantha Harris, perfectly captured the essence of its nighttime show outside at the docks of a nearby marina.

Stuffed animals are every child's comfort. So just wait until you have to tell your child, "No, Honey, you can't snuggle the plush elephant — it's actually a GIFT CARD HOLDER." It can be hard to separate the sentimental nose from the critical one. That's the problem with AROMATICS ELIXIR VELVET SHEER ($35, clinique.com), an update to Clinique's first fragrance that's designed to be dabbed on pulse points, not sprayed. To this reporter, it just smells like Evelyn Thornton of Oklahoma, who happens to be this reporter's grandmother. Metrorail Info Goes Mobile

TRANSIT | If you're a commuter who has yearned to know with greater precision when Metrorail trains will service the station of your choice, your day, Metro says, has arrived. That information could soon be in the palm of your hand.

Metro has unveiled a new system that transmits real-time train information to Web-enabled handheld devices, such as BlackBerrys and cell phones, The Washington Post's Lena H. Sun reported last week. Just go to WMATA.COM/MOBILE and select "Next train information."

Not glued to a handheld? You can get the info on your home computer, too. Just go to WMATA.COM and click on the "Maps and stations" tab in the upper left corner, then on "Find a stop/station." Pick your station, click on "Next train arrival" and you've got it.

Metro is also testing real-time information for seven bus routes, Sun reported. Those routes are the 9A and 9E in Virginia, the F4 and F6 in Maryland and the 90, 92 and 93 in the District. Get more on that at WMATA.NEXTBUS.COM/WMATA/.

Boos for Shoes

FASHION | Online and in print on Friday, shoeblogger Manolo (shoeblogs.com) offered advice to Martha, a mom who sought casual shoes for her law-school-grad son. The Manolo pointed her toward a traditional tassel loafer from Ben Sherman, priced at $220.

ON SCHEDULE: Metro now transmits train arrival info to handheld devices.

That elicited a pointed response from commenter I heart DC: Tassles? Please tell me this is a joke. This is a young lawyer, not an 85-year-old man. Ben Sherman's great, but these shoes are not."

Not everyone was a critic, however. Commenter Princess Sparkle Pony applauded Manolo's pick. "The Ben Shermans are an excellent recommendation because they're well made and more rugged (check out those soles) than most girly-man lawyer shoes."

Lisa De Moraes

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday at washingtonpost.com to discuss the cast of "Lost's" driving records in Hawaii and vent about Oprah's charity giveaway.

What makes "Ugly Betty" a prime time soap? What would "Grey's Anatomy" be? Just interested in the industry lingo.

Also a prime-time soap! In truth, I think "soap" is the term The Reporters Who Cover Television use to describe serialized chick dramas, and "serialized drama" is the term they use to describe serialized guy dramas. Because guys would never watch a soap — right? Oh, and guy soaps all have "mythology" — oooohhh!

When is Les Moonves going to axe Katie Couric? Her ratings are godawful and getting worse.

Not soon. They've already shelled out the money on her salary, a new set and the launch promotion, though I think maybe they'd have been better served saving that money and doing a "soft" launch.

Why couldn't Oprah give her audience $1,000 for themselves and also a $1,000 to give to charity?

How about letting them keep the Sony videocams? How about giving them each a Starbucks gift card for their time or a 15-minute massage for their effort? How about just giving the money to charity, quietly and off-camera, and not mentioning it at all during the show, and letting the stars of that episode be the people she interviewed who she seemed to be suggesting had "paid it forward" in their lives, instead of upstaging them with her "giveaway"?

I have this theory about "Lost": The next time someone from the cast is in the news with a story involving a Hawaiian traffic cop, the character is a goner. Any validity to that?

100 percent. The remaining cast would all be wise to hire drivers when in Hawaii. Meanwhile, ABC must make all future cast members take driving and sobriety tests. Honestly, this is the worst bunch of drivers and drunks I've ever seen on a single TV show.

Smear Ads Won't Be Missed

IS IT JUST ME, or can anyone else not wait for the upcoming election to be over? I'm not concerned with the results, but rather with the political garbage that will exit our televisions. Finally, I will be able to enjoy my favorite programs

What happened to the days when a candidate could win without evoking a smear campaign on his or her opponent? I can't speak for anyone else, but I will certainly be sitting easy this Wednesday.

THIS
GIVE
FOR MY LIFE!

R. Donald Tomasik

I wanted to write and let you know that I am eternally grateful to you for saving my life! I saw an ad for mobile ultra-sound tests for a year before actually signing up to be tested. I just had a feeling that something wasn't right; my wife kept urging me to spend the $179 and get checked for nothing else but the peace of mind.

Boy, am I glad I did, it was found that I had a 5 1/2 centimeter aortic aneurysm. I was able to take my test results to my primary care physician and be referred to a specialist, Doctor Showalter, who's first question was 'how do you know you have an aneurysm?' I showed him my Healthfair test results and he smiled and said, 'those Healthfair screenings probably saved your life!'

That was in February 2003 and after a successful surgery, I'm happy to say I'm in good health in 2004 and indebted to Healthfair USA for saving my life! Unfortunately our friend Connie in Vermont didn't have an opportunity to have these inexpensive tests and died of a ruptured aneurysm. We miss her and hope to see Healthfair mobile units all over the country someday. It really is necessary to have these tests since Medicare won't pay for preventative screenings and I couldn't afford to pay the hospital price! Thanks from both Marge and I for your 7 test package, it was truly an investment in my health!

JCAHO

What this means for you.

Accreditation by JCAHO is considered the Gold Standard in health care. JCAHO is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to raising the level of safety and quality of care in all health care settings. Since 1951, JCAHO accreditation has been recognized within health care as a symbol of quality. HealthFair USA is accredited just as the hospitals in your community are accredited.

Accreditation means that HealthFair USA has volunteered to undergo a challenging, comprehensive evaluation. HealthFair USA has made a significant extra effort to review and improve the key factors that can affect the quality and safety of your care. Doctors and nurses from JCAHO personally visited HealthFair USA to conduct an intense on-site review and looked at how well the company: 1) provides a safe environment of care, 2) protects your rights as a client, including your right to confidentiality, 3) educates you about the risks and options for diagnosis and treatment, 4) protects you against infection, and 5) plans for emergency situations.

HealthFair USA is the only mobile diagnostic screening company with JCAHO accreditation, showing a willingness to be measured against the highest standards of performance.

Whenever and wherever you receive health care, look for the JCAHO gold seal of approval.
